Ghostbuster Sara Winchester, widow of the gun magnate, was so fearful that the spirits of people shot by her husband's rifles would come back to haunt her that she added room after room to her California mansion in an effort to evade them. Times Square may seem like an odd spot to pay homage to Sara, but that's what artist Jeremy Blake does in his trippy video, Cowboy Waltz, now being aired in snippets once every hour as part of Creative Time and Panasonic's "59th Minute" project. Blake employs a near-hypnotic succession of abstract shapes and shots of the woman's home. Chances are, seeing the above in such media-saturated environs would confound Winchester's dreaded spirits no end (see Elsewhere).—Sarah Schermer
