Saturday's agenda: Local theater, the Easter Bunny, Iraq art exhibit

'It is what it is' is here

It is what it is: Conversations about Iraq, a traveling art project curated by Turner Prize winner Jeremy Deller will be in Dallas today on the SMU campus. The public is encouraged to bring objects related to Iraq for conversation. The road show will continue to Santa Fe, Phoenix and Los Angeles, where it will go on view at the Hammer Museum on April 21, then to the Museum of Contemporary Art in Chicago. Details of the travels, video updates and participants can be seen at www.conversationsaboutiraq.org. In Dallas the project is hosted by the Goss-Michael Foundation. Participants are asked to meet at the Bishop Boulevard flagpole on the SMU campus from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.
